
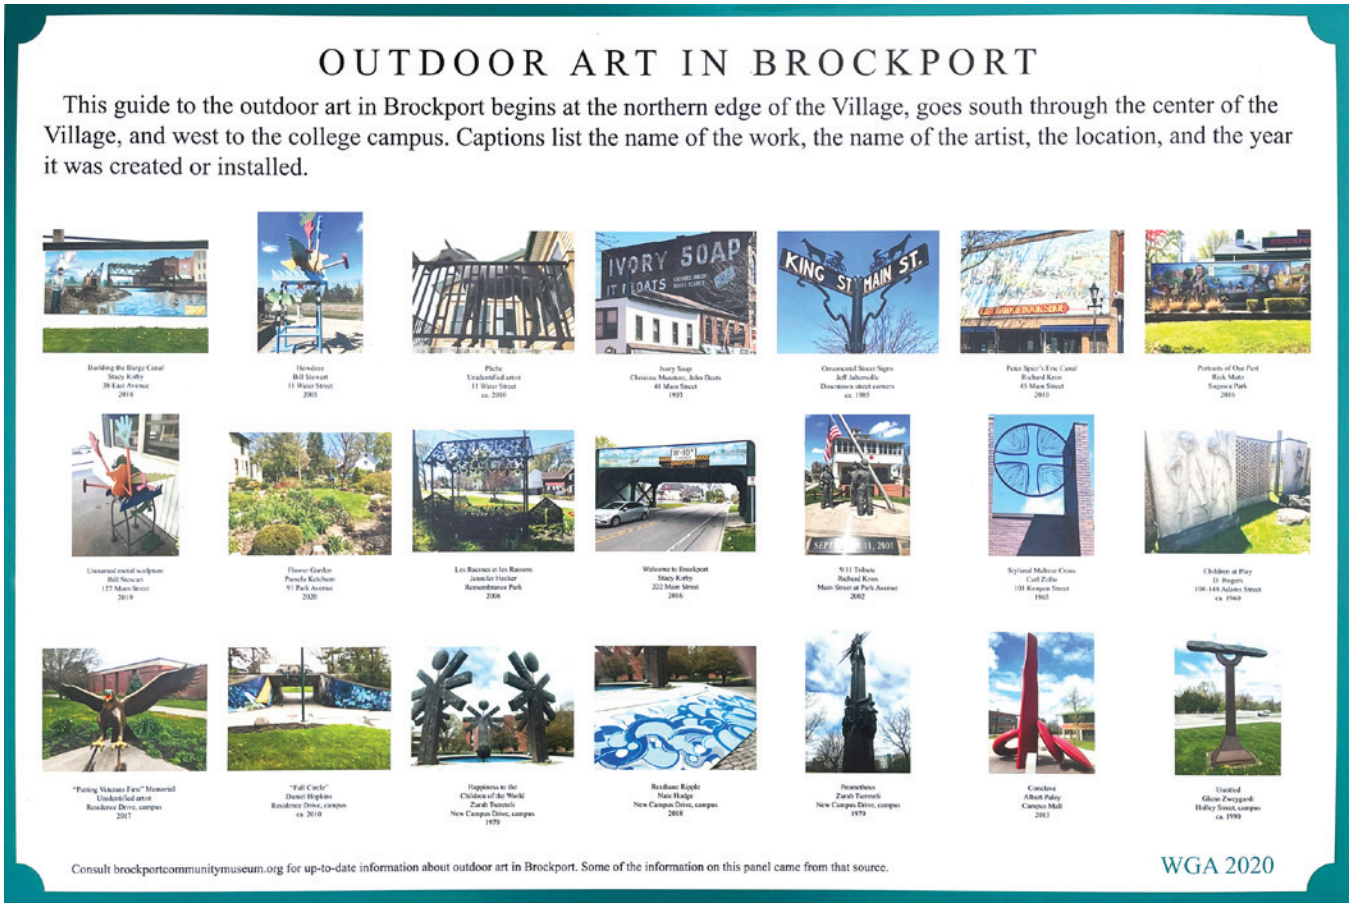

Fig. 1. This non-museum panel was designed and funded by William G. Andrews and dedicated Saturday, November 14, 2020.

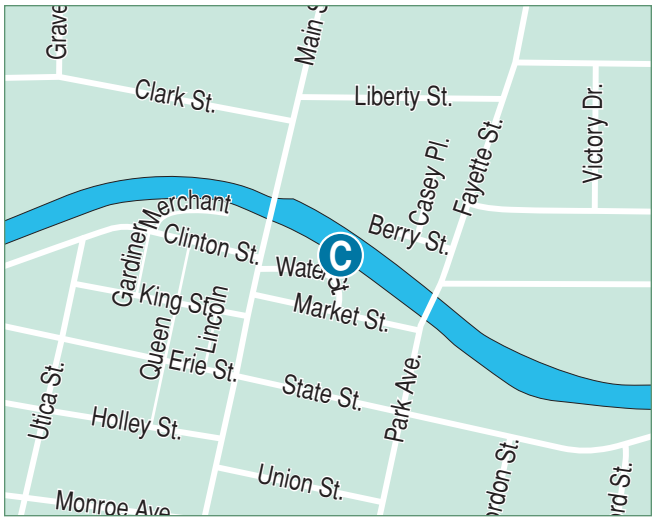

Fig. 2. Panel location is in front of the Welcome Center on Water Street, here indicated by "C" in a blue circle..

Fig. 3. You are looking north from Water Street at the panel in front of the Welcome Center.

Fig. 1 & 3 Photo taken 2021.07.12 by Norm Frisch
Fig. 2 Version 2021.07.24 by Norm Frisch

New interpretive panel celebrates Brockport's outdoor art

Editor • November 9, 2020 612 Less than a minute

The new "Outdoor Art in Brockport" interpretive panel at the canalside Welcome Center will be dedicated at 2 p.m. on Saturday, November 14. The panel includes photos of 21 works of outdoor art in the village along with captions that name the works and the artists and give their locations and the years they were created or installed. Mayor Margay Blackman will preside at the dedication.

The panel was designed by Brockport Village Historian Bill Andrews, fabricated by Fossil Industries, and installed by Brockport's Department of Public Works. Andrews suggests that many villagers may not be aware of the large collection of outdoor art on display in the village or of their artists. Andrews says, "We hope that this panel will help to bring our artistic treasures to the attention of village residents and visitors." He points out that they include an early major sculpture by Albert Paley, the leading metal sculptor in the world, and the only two major works of "Socialist Realism" art in the western hemisphere, the only gift by the Soviet Union to the United States.

Provided information

Fig. 4. This is a screen shot of an article about the dedication of the panel found 2021.07.19 on the Westside News website here: https://westsidenewsny.com/news/2020-11-09/new-interpretive-panel-celebrates-brockports-outdoor-art/